

Kurdt Greenwood

Kurdt Greenwood is not your average naturalist. From a young age, he forged an extraordinary bond with the natural world, particularly with creatures that many would shy away from — deadly animals. His journey into the realm of wildlife began as a curious four-year-old, captivated by the raw power and mystique of these formidable creatures.

Watch my Showreel

Watch my SHOWREEL

Kurdt Greenwood is a young, dynamic naturalist, conservationist, survival expert, and animal behaviour specialist whose passion for wildlife knows no bounds. From a tender age, Kurdt has been fascinated by the natural world, particularly the deadly creatures that inhabit it.

His enthusiasm and infectious manner captivate audiences, leaving them both terrified and mesmerized. Kurdt's unique ability to blend education with entertainment makes him a standout speaker in the fields of wildlife conservation and survival.

“Kurdt is an incredible speaker with arguably unrivalled knowledge and experience in the animal kingdom. His ability to share his knowledge in a way that captivates the audience and allows them to learn is extraordinary. We have truly learned more than we could have ever expected from Kurdt and continue to learn from him.”

Abraham - Training Cesar's Way

My topic 1

Calm and Confident

Kurdt takes you into his world of adventure, exploration and wildlife. Facing some of the most dangerous animals in the most hostile environments on the planet. Pushing the human-animal boundaries to a level previously thought impossible. From putting two of Africa's most deadly cobras to sleep with a gentle touch, to swimming with great white sharks and crocodiles.

With Kurdt's aim to push human-animal interaction he plans to do a "Living With" series where he survives for a month in the wild with 5 top apex predators, living off the land, and spending every day with one of the 5 species including hyenas, komodo dragons, Nile crocodiles, grizzly bears and lions.

Kurdt aims to demonstrate that even the most deadly animals on the planet are deeply misunderstood and if approached with the right knowledge, skill, and energy, we can learn from them in an interactive way that does not have to be a death sentence. By showcasing the different sides of these feared animals he hopes to inspire people to protect them for future generations.

Continued

Kurdt inspires his audience to get out there, explore, soak up as much experience as they can, and in the process discover what they're really made of.

Key Takeaways:

- Learning how to stay calm even in the eye of the storm to achieve new levels of success.
- How to push yourself beyond your comfort zone to achieve mental fortitude.
- How confidence can help you overcome unpredictable challenges.
- Facing your fears will help with inner-growth, opening new avenues, and teach a new way to see the world.
- Exploring the remarkable connection we have with all animals if we approach with the right mindset.
-

Ideal Audience

Anyone with a love for nature, adventure and storytelling who wants to face down their fears and come out more confident and calm with a deep respect for nature and oneself

Only Knowledge Can Abolish Fear

Kurdt has put himself in countless death-defying situations most humans would never dare to enter into, in the name of discovery and learning. Sharing stories of his immense adventures in the wild, Kurdt describes handling the most deadly wild snakes on the planet in hostile locations accompanied by terrified film crews on set of his internationally acclaimed TV show Deadliest Snakes of South Africa.

Kurdt recalls how patience and mental fortitude were of the utmost importance from his experiences tracking cheetahs, swimming with killer whales and sharks, and working with black rhinos deep in harsh African landscapes to document the intricate lives of beautiful creatures for National Geographic.

Kurdt brings to life the struggles and lessons on living illuminated by his time building, and residing in, his Afro Montagne forest survivalist dwellings over 2020 lockdown, which became a news sensation.

From constant innovation and adaptation, mastering your environment and circumstance, and having a thirst for a life beyond the conventional – Kurdt is constantly reminded that the treasures of existence are a few feet beyond the boundaries of comfort.

Continued

Kurdt uses his vast observations of animal pack behaviour from his days spent raising lions to discuss the benefit of working in teams. Delving into pack mentality,

Key Takeaways:

- Dynamics of working together in packs/teams for a common goal.
- Adaptability as the greatest survival and strengthening tactic in the modern world.
- Abolishing fear with knowledge and lived experience.
- Developing mental fortitude by pushing oneself beyond fear and self-imposed limitations. – Discovery of the inner-self through adventure and exploration in the one wild life you have been given.
- Stress management and relief in the natural world.
- Resurrecting a sense of childlike wonder and infinite curiosity, where all experience is internalized as information rather than a win/fail mentality.

Ideal Audience

Companies needing motivation and inspiration for their teams, who enjoy storytelling of great feats and tales of daring human endeavour.