About

Dr Nondumiso Makhunga-Stevenson

Dr. Nondumiso Makhunga-Stevenson is a medical doctor and certified coach with over 20 years of diverse experience in healthcare—spanning pharmaceuticals, public health, clinical research, general practice, and hospital management. Her multidisciplinary background equips her with deep insight into the real-world challenges healthcare leaders face, especially in high-pressure, complex environments.

As the world's first medical doctor trained and certified in Ubuntu Coaching, Dr. Makhunga-Stevenson draws from the African philosophy of interconnectedness to guide physicians toward authentic, values-driven leadership. Her work empowers clinicians to resolve conflict, build emotionally intelligent teams, and align their personal purpose with professional demands.

A passionate advocate for healing the healers, she specializes in coaching and speaking on physician wellbeing, leadership development, and cultural transformation in healthcare. Her mission is to help healthcare professionals thrive—through every stage of their careers.
